The following questions and their respective answers are provided for information purposes:

Question #1: When using augmentation devices that are currently part of the Navy's assets and are designed to use onboard power, are we required to provide an independent power source for the 12 hour autonomous operation specified in Attachment #2, para. 3.7.4?

Answer #1: No- existing Navy assets can be used, as approved for on-board operation, provided that no modifications are required for use with the contractor's proposed system, i.e. "as is" existing Navy assets are capable of nominal 12 hour autonomous operation. Please note, however, that any proposed augmentation devices which are not existing Navy assets must be autonomous.

Question #2: Attachment #2, para. 3.2.3.4 states 25 meters Circular Standard Error, Attachment #3, para. 3.2.3.4 states 150 meters Circular Standard Error. Does this represent 1 sigma in both cases?

Answer #2: Yes.

Question #3: Attachment #1, Statement of Work, para. 2.0- Scope states that "This system shall be easily maintained and operated, and be capable of remote operations from one site". Is a specific site required for remote operation or display?

Answer #3: See the changes made to Attachments #2 and #3 stated above.
